BELLE GLADE — PAHOKEE, FL.

JUNKED CARS dotted around Belle Glade, such as the collection of buses, trucks and cars abandoned on this vacant lot on Northwest 11th Street, located between two apartment buildings just north of West Avenue A, were being eyed again this week by the city commission and the newly appointed Code Enforcement Board. The commission considered Monday a request by the Board to draft a new ordinance dealing with the problem but City Attorney John Baker said an old city ordinance already provides the solution. He will talk to the board when it next meets on Tuesday.

City program is best in the state

By DEAN JONES

Herald-Observer Editor

BELLE GLADE—If it's true that a prophet receives no honor in his own country, it's probably also true a state-wide reputation enjoyed by a city department receives little recognition.

That's the case of Belle Glade's Community Development Department, headed by Remar Harvin. The local program was recently ranked number one in the state among applications for U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development block grant funds.

With a total of 854 ranking points, Belle Glade graded out 102 points higher than the next applicant, Volusia County and once again the city is in the position of having $471,000 reserved for Fiscal Year 1980, only one of nine programs in the state to be so favored.

A total of 145 applications were filed but the other 136 community development programs either had no funds assured but might get funded or fell below the fundable level of ranking points completely.

Both under Harvin and his predecessor, George Gartner, Belle Glade has continued to have funds reserved for its Community Development (CD) program.

Harvin's reputation at HUD has grown until last year he was asked to sit on an ad-hoc committee to help decide where applicants should be ranked in the FY80 CD Block Grant Small Cities Program.

REMAR HARVIN

In a letter dated Dec. 28, Everett H. Rothschild, of the Jacksonville Area Office of HUD, notified the city it would be among 20 cities and counties which competed for the available funds HUD has this year to be invited to submit a full application for funding.

Four more applicants would be invited to submit standby applications should the so-called imminent threat funds held in abeyance be released for funding and nine would be permitted to submit alternate applications.

Harvin said two of the major factors in ranking cities are the needs presented by the city and the city's ability to do the work. He said the ability is measured in part by the amount of funds in previous years that has been used in the program.

A recent letter from HUD to the city had a drawdown rate, as of Dec. 11, of 98.19 per cent for FY78. Harvin said some cities have funds left from programs dated as far back as 1976.

One of the latest programs Harvin has been working on is a low-rent apartment complex to be located in the southwest section of town. A total of 50 apartment units has been slated for construction there.

He said one of his problems for planning more of this housing, referred to as Section 8 Housing, is to find more land for future projects.

The property being used is the last property in the city limits he knows of which is still available and two tracts of land considered for the current project, both outside the city limits, were the subject of objections by neighbors.

Harvin said the thrust of the program for the coming year will continue to be housing rehabilitation but he said he will once again be seeking public input to find other programs, such as the need for more recreational lot lots in the city, one area he said is already recognized.

He said input for next year's program is on the agenda for a meeting tonight of the Citizens Planning and Advisory Committee.

He said he will also mail out letters to residents once again this year, a practice he started last year when he sent 76 letters to city residents asking them for their

Lack of support won't affect Glades center

By AILSA DEWING
Staff Writer

Plans for organizing a separate Glades area Mental Health Clinic with the aid of a three-year $600,000 annual federal grant are not affected by the Palm Beach County Comprehensive Mental Health Center board's lack of support, according to two Belle Glade spokesmen.

The county M-H board meeting this week refused to give its support to the federal grant application now in its final preparation stages by tabling the question, as it has done each month since last spring.

The grant funding will allow organization of the Western Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic to proceed but the formation of the separate "catchment" area would deprive the county clinic of $80,000 which would be diverted to the Glades area.

The county mental health board's reluctance to act "has no effect whatsoever," said Mrs. Gene Cross, chairman of the local M-H steering committee. "District 9 is over all of us," she said, referring to the fact that the five-county district favors the separation of the two mental health units and is preparing the grant application.

In tabling the resolution to support the federal grant, Dr. McKinley Cheshire said the board did not have sufficient information to make a decision. Informed that Miss Jean Cogar, director of the Community Mental Health Center in Belle Glade, was present, the board did not ask her for information nor has it ever requested any written information in the past, Miss Cogar reports.

Miss Cogar agrees that "it isn't important" for the county board to offer its support, although, she added that "research and evaluation studies show that people are underserved in this area and some might question why it is that a board of mental health advocates don't support it."

Two Glades area representatives on the county mental health board did not attend the meeting because they have reportedly been dropped from membership for missing three meetings in a row. They are Mrs. Estella Pyfrom and Willard Taylor, Jr.

Miss Cogar says that she learned their names had been dropped from the board roster but they were never officially notified. Two nominations were subsequently submitted as their replacements but the board has failed to act on the nominations. Only one of the replacements also serves on the Glades area steering committee, Miss Cogar said.

At the hearing in Belle Glade in January with District 9 Mental Health board and staff members to complete input on the federal grant application, it was noted that Glades area citizens and groups should submit their endorsements to the proposal and that the supporting documents attached to the application, would weigh heavily in getting federal approval.

Miss Cogar reiterated the need for more voices endorsing the project. "Our citizens recognize the need for service and the reason for wanting it," she said. "We have an unmet mental health need and we will respond in quality," she said.

Closed doors surprise workers

BELLE GLADE—When the doors of Value Dollar closed Saturday evening after a normal day's business, there was no indication it was going to be for the last time, according to Manager Sara Rives, but when she went to the store Sunday afternoon to handle some routine work, she found the building empty except for a lone shopping cart in the middle of the floors and brackets for wall shelves.

The clothing store opened last August with promises of becoming the largest such business in the Glades and selling "quality merchandise at reasonable prices."

Co-owners Dennis Beaverson and Charles Serneck said just before the opening that the store would be unique to the area but not original, that other stores like it have been highly successful in other areas.

By the first of this week, Serneck and his family had moved out of their home and Beaverson, a resident of Fort Myers, had apparently had his home phone number changed.

While she said she was surprised to find the store empty Sunday, Mrs. Rives said she, "knew everything wasn't going very well. They (Beaverson and Serneck) had been talking about it."

That the store was having problems was nothing new. Cal Lockwood, who was associate buyer at the time the store opened in August, said he had been informed by Beaverson and Serneck in September they could no longer afford his services.

"I tried calling Dennis (Beaverson) in Fort Myers today," Mrs. Rives said, "but his phone had been taken out. I don't know if he's moved or not."

When asked if she and Lola Trett, the only other employee when the business closed its doors Saturday night, had been paid, Mrs. Rives made no comment.

AN EMPTY SHELL, holding a lone shopping cart and the brackets for wall shelves, was all left behind when Value Dollar closed its doors for good Saturday night.

BACKTALK

Next month the government will mail out the 1990 census forms which are to be returned by mail on April 1. Backtalk's question this week is, "Do you think most people will mail in their census forms?"

Rick Berryhill, Belle Glade—Probably 50 to 60 percent will. Some just won't take the time.

Cecil Roker, South Bay—I think people won't. They just don't take it seriously. I've never gotten one myself.

Ann Wickman, Belle Glade—It depends on people's views about it, on how they look at it. I don't have any guess about who will. The intelligent ones will answer and the others won't.

Mary Ann Miller, South Bay—I don't know whether they will or not. I don't think anybody will fool with them.

Georgene Burton, South Bay—Probably not. Some will think it's important but I just don't have time to fool with it.

Junked cars need to go

It's a wondrous thing how little so many can care about so much when that much is junk and trash piling up in vacant lots, like that on Northwest 11th Street just north of West Avenue A. (See picture Page One).

Take your pick. There's anyone's choice of junk in that heap. There's a couple of old school buses lying on their sides. . . some field trucks that may or may not be operable and some nondescript scrap metal so anonymous it would be hard to determine what the original shape was.

Taken in concert with the heavy growth of maidencain and the mud puddles, this vacant lot, handily located between two apartment buildings, makes for a great breeding ground for an interesting set of neighbors such as rats, mosquitoes and snakes.

Not to mention, it's also a great little place for the neighborhood kids to pass completely from sight should the unaware get in the habit of playing in the rusting hulks dotting the landscape.

One is forced to wonder how many mothers in the area have missed a young son or daughter and run down to the street's own version of a tot lot to see if one of the pieces of playground equipment has become a death trap or whether the young'un has made friends with some of his four-legged or no-legged neighbors.

Not that the collection of yesterday's buses and trucks on Northwest 11th Street are unique. There are literally dozens, perhaps scores, of cars, buses and trucks, that should fall into the abandoned, derelict or just plain junk categories, dotting Belle Glade.

Pride would be enough of a reason for the average person to want to keep junked cars off private property but pride doesn't seem to exist in some people.

If pride isn't enough, one would think the safety of small children in particular and the neighborhood in general would be sufficient reason to keep the vermin breeders cleared away but that doesn't seem to work either. Some people are apparently oblivious to the well-being of the neighborhood where they live . . . or where they own property and other people live.

So maybe the only plausible answer to the problem is to pinch the landowner where it hurts . . . in the pocketbook.

Belle Glade already has an ordinance on the books against the accumulation of trash. Fine the offenders every day, with each day serving as a separate offense, and you're going to get somebody's attention sooner or later.

Just that approach has been suggested by Belle Glade Attorney John Baker and just that approach may be the only approach left available when community pride and concern for the well-being of neighborhood residents fail.

Supplying rope

A letter requesting information described as needed by the Florida Rural Legal Services in order to set priorities for the coming year looks mighty like a fishing expedition into city hiring practices.

The letter from attorney Donald E. Mason to the Belle Glade city manager wanted eight different kinds of information, including the city's affirmative action hiring plan, lists of all black city employees who hold administrative positions, manager positions and Civil Service position, the number of each type of those three positions in the city and copies of the Civil Service Code now in use.

Mason said he has no idea the city is doing anything wrong and added he is also asking the same information from other public agencies, including the Palm Beach County School Board.

He said the reason he wants the information is because Florida Rural Legal Services is in the process of setting its annual priorities.

That's odd because we were under the impression the priority of FRLS, indeed the reason for being of the tax-supported agency, is to supply free legal assistance to poor people, particularly farm workers, who can't afford it for themselves.

We'd hate to know Florida Rural Legal Services may slip back to the stance of a former time when the agency was no longer taking divorces or other humdrum cases because it was so preoccupied with class action suits against other tax supported institutions such as the city.

And despite the assurances of Mr. Mason, the request smacks of asking the condemned man to supply the rope for his own hanging . . .

... Before he's been condemned.

Home, James

Sure was nice to know that when the beautiful people in Palm Beach went to the polls Tuesday to decide who was going to represent them on the Town Council, they were having one of the same types of problems experienced here on the muck . . . even if they did reach a slightly different solution.

One of the problems common to the Glades and Palm Beach is that the upper crusters were just as concerned about supplying transportation for getting out the vote.

But while the taxi cabs are usually the center of controversy in Belle Glade, the Citizens Concerned for the Town Council disclaimed the cabbies in favor of supplying limousine service.

It wasn't clear whether the chauffeurs were going to be allowed to vote at the same time or whether they'd have to come back on their own time.

Ain't Democracy grand?

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

One of the things I never cared about during the time I was in Uncle Sam's Wind Force and the staff of the tech school was trying to prepare me for the life of a radio repairman was all those electronic theorems and laws.

Ohm's Law I finally got down pat. Not that I understood it but at least I had it memorized. Kirchhoff's Law they can forget and the only thing I remember about a Wheatstone Bridge was riding over it on my motorcycle.

But Murphy's Law is a horse of a different color. Not only do I understand it implicitly, not to mention inside and out, but I live it every waking moment.

Now, I realize most people are familiar with Murphy's Law. If they haven't heard it distilled into words, they'll still recognize it immediately. All it says is: If something can go wrong, it will.

That's the kind of immutably practical law I can deal with but it's only one of a myriad, for instance:

Weller's Law Nothing is impossible for the man who doesn't have to do it himself. Get the idea? How about a few more?

Pitagibson's Law Creativity varies inversely with the number of cooks involved with the broth.

Chisholm's Law (not Paul) Anytime things appear to be going better, you have overlooked something.

Flagle's Law Once a job is fouled up, anything done to improve it makes it worse.

Berdin's Law In a crisis, that forces a choice to be made among alternate courses of action, most people will choose the worst one possible.

Salinger's Law Quit when you're still behind. When you are in a hole, DON'T DIG.

Patrice's Theorem If the experiment works, you must be using the wrong equipment.

Gusterman's Law The probability of an event occurring is inversely proportional to its desirability.

Timely Order Principle: Those supplies necessary for yesterday's experiment must be ordered no later than tomorrow noon.

Flaple's Law of The Perversity of Objects: The more you try to make an inanimate object, regardless of its composition or configuration, may be expected to perform at any time—in a totally unexpected manner for reasons that are either entirely obscure or else completely mysterious.

Sod's Law Prevails: when Flaple's Law does not hold. In any given set of circumstances, events will combine to provide the maximum amount of inconvenience for the greatest number of people.

Corrigan's Theorem or "Jam Slide Down" If there is more than one way in which a system can operate, it will usually operate the worst way.

Corollary to Corrigan's Theorem: Anything that can fail will.

Second Corollary: Anything that fails will fail in the one manner most difficult to explain.

Gunning's Law The amount of expertise varies in inverse proportion to the number of statements understood by the general public.

Daniel's Theorem If you don't know where you're going, any road will get you there.

Schmidt's Law Never eat prunes when you're hungry.

Rev. Mahaffy's Observation There's no such thing as a large whiskey.

Cannon's Cogent Comment The leak in the roof is never in the same location as the drip.

The Golden Rule Whoever has the gold makes the rules, or did.

The Law Of Frodo Baggins Whatever hits the fan will not be evenly distributed (also known as The "How Come It All Landed On Me" Law).

Martha's Maxim If God had meant for us to travel tourist class, he would have made us narrower.

Russell's Observation Due to a lack of trained trumpeters, the end of the world has been postponed indefinitely.

Eisenberg's Theory Once a good turn gets most of the blanks.

The Point Of No Return Law The light at the end of the tunnel could turn out to be the headlight of an oncoming train.

Moore's Truism The trouble with most jobs is the resemblance to being in a sled dog team. No one gets a change of scenery except the lead dog.

Feldstein's Law Never, ever, play leapfrog with a unicorn.

Cold damage explained

Cold weather earlier this week may have brought some crop damage but the extent was still unknown Wednesday according to Palm Beach County Agricultural Agent Kenneth Shuler.

Shuler said temperatures in the 30s Monday and Tuesday morning is know to have from some rainshes, celery and lettuce but he said he is only aware of one incident in which a grower plowed under some lettuce.

The amount of damage to sweet corn, if any, was still unknown, he said.

"I know there was some sweet corn up about six inches," Shuler said. "The cold weather and wind could dry out the leaves but if it didn't get to the bud, it should grow back."

Shuler said the lowest thermometer reading he had personally checked at his office was 32 degrees but he had heard of one reading down to 30 on Brown's Farm Road. That was Tuesday morning.

One reading was reported to the Herald-Observer Monday morning also from Brown's Farm Road, of 26 degrees. Shuler said the problem with relying on readings from various thermometers is the way many are set up, with some in shade and others in sunshine; some higher or lower from the ground than others.

He said there was no frost reported, primarily because of winds averaging 15 miles an hour, but those winds could have dried out some of the leafy vegetables, "but I can't make any firm statement about that yet either."

The cold weather came at the end of a much wetter than usual January, which saw more than six inches of rain, compared to the average 1.88 inch rainfall for the month.

Dr. Robert Allen of the Agricultural Research and Education Center reported 4.55 inches of rainfall over the Jan. 26-27 weekend along.

A SOLAR-POWERED CAR is just one of the displays to be shown on Valentine's Day at Lake Shore Middle School when teacher-

demonstrator Jim Cobb presents "Energy Today and Tomorrow."

Lake Shore pupils to view traveling energy program

BELLE GLADE-Lake Shore Middle School will be one of 12 schools in the county where a show explaining energy... where it comes from, how we use it and why it's getting expensive, will be presented, with local kids getting a look on Feb. 14.

"Energy Today and Tomorrow" is a special traveling school program, developed and operated by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU), and sponsored by Florida Power & Light and other Florida electric utilities throughout the state during its tour in Florida.

The show features an array of electronic teaching devices, including an animated garbage can that demonstrates the value of recycling, a bicycle that generates electricity, an electrostatic precipitator to control pollution and an electric motorcycle.

Teacher-demonstrator Jim Cobb uses this equipment and other devices to describe energy sources, methods used today for power generation, possible future energy sources and social, economic and environmental choices faced when energy is used. Conservation of energy is also emphasized.

Cobb holds a B.S. degree in Science Education from Mississippi State University and has had special training from ORAU on the subject of energy. His is one of 30 such ORAU units operating daily at schools in different parts of the country.

Lake Shore Science Chairman William Turley said there will be two shows on Valentine's Day, one at 9 and one at 10 a.m. He said all the school's seventh and eighth graders will participate.

Turley said this is only one of several such programs being scheduled for the school's science students. He said Palm Beach County Animal Control officers will be making presentations over a six-day period, beginning next Tuesday, to the students.

"We got a lot of feedback from the letters last year," he said. "There were dozens of suggestions. A lot those suggestions wouldn't have come under passed those along to the appropriate departments in the city. We actually funded four projects after they were approved by the city commission. It turned out one of those projects didn't need the funds but the other three became part of the program."

One of those projects, the construction of a ramp for wheelchairs at the entrance to the American Legion Building on

Southeast Avenue D, is now in progress. The ramp was justified because the American Legion is a polling place during general elections.

One of the program's funding sources, Hold Harmless Funds, will end with this fiscal year. Harvin said the city received $145,000 in Hold Harmless funds for the current fiscal year, added to the $364,000 received through the HUD Small Cities program to make a total of $509,000 budget for the program this year.

Next year Harvin is seeking $471,000 to continue his department's work.

BIG-IT! is just what this pair of monster draglines are ready to do, perhaps as early as this afternoon. The big machines, the largest on the muck at this time, will be used by Rubin Construction Company to begin the earthwork required to extend SR80 from the Glades Office Building to US98 just west of 20 Mile Bend. Easing of purchasing guidelines fails

SOUTH BAY-A bid to make it easier for the city to make it easier for the city to make purchases without going to sealed bids failed Tuesday evening when the city commission took no action on a proposed ordinance.

The ordinance would have put a question on the Mar. 4 city election ballot, asking whether the city should be allowed to make purchases, without going to bid, of an amount greater than $1,000, the present amount over which sealed bids must be made.

The city is currently allowed to authorize to shop around for purchases with an estimated cost of less than $1,000. For costs estimated over that, the city must advertise for sealed bids.

No recommendation was made at which point sealed bids would begin in the ordinance. City Attorney James Gann left that item blank for the commissioners to fill in should they decide they should go to a higher amount.

Had the ordinance been passed, it would have had to go before the voters before the question could have been settled.

No motion was made on the measure but Mayor Billy Wells polled the commissioners. He and Commissioner Don Tanner said they believed the measure should be passed because inflation has lowered the buying power of $1,000 since that was set as the bidding point in the city charter.

Wells said Public Utilities Director Lomax Harrelle had said he now had to go to bids on a number of items he had been authorized to purchase in the past by shopping around for the best price.

Tanner said the only problem he had was that no recommendation had been made for a proposed bidding price. He said he could go along with the request if it was for a reasonable increase, such as up to $1,500.

On an informal poll of the commission, however, Mayor Wells found that Commissioners Vernita Cox, Ray Sullivan and Refugio Garcia were opposed to the increase.

City Manager Charles Merz, Harrelle and Gann were absent from the meeting and could offer no input.

Raiders win 2 games

BELLE GLADE-The Glades Central boys basketball team edged into second place in the Suncoast Conference West this week with wins over Cardinal Newman and Jupiter which gave the local team an 8-4 conference record and an 11-11 overall season record.

Raider Coach Jay Seider said the 75-57 win over the Crusaders and the 75-66 win over the Warriors are indications Glades Central has been playing well as a team and playing more consistently than at the first of the season.

"We have ten players on the team," Seider said, "and all ten are contributing." With only one returning letterman from last year and the football season overlapping the basketball season, keeping him busy at two coaching jobs and two basketball players out of action five weeks into the season, Seider said he would be happy with a break-even season.

"We're at 500 now," he said, "and we have a chance to go into the winning column next week. The team has jelled and I think they're looking forward to the next few games."

The Raiders have a total of four more games before beginning the district playoffs. They'll be playing at Clewiston Friday and hosting Suncoast next Tuesday.

Glades Central played at Cardinal Newman Tuesday, trouncing the Crusaders before the entire Cardinal Newman student body in an afternoon game.

"We were able to move the ball pretty well," Seider said, "and we used the fast break against them effectively. It was also our best shooting game. We scored 100 per cent from the free throw line and that's unusual." He said the Raiders also did well on rebounding, making the opportunities to try again when the first shot failed.

In the Cardinal Newman game, the Raider's high scorer was Sam Anderson with 25 points and eight rebounds, followed by Eugene Wells with 12 points and four rebounds, Charles Sears with ten points and nine rebounds, Jessie Hester with 10 points and five rebounds, Ernest Bussie with six points and five rebounds, Terrence Gardner with four and two, Barry Adley with four, Sam Smith with two and two Morris Dukes with two points.

In the Friday night win over Jupiter, Seider said the Raiders tried a couple of new wrinkles defensively which worked well. He said the players also performed well as a team again and stretched out the lead all the way through the game.

Anderson and Hester led the scoring with 20 points each. Anderson also made 11 rebounds while Hester picked off six. Gardner scored 13 points and made four rebounds, Sears made 10 and 11, Bussie made eight and five and Wells scored four points and made five rebounds.

Cold damage explained

Cold weather earlier this week may have brought some crop damage but the extent was still unknown Wednesday according to Palm Beach County Agricultural Agent Kenneth Shuler.

Shuler said temperatures in the 30s Monday and Tuesday morning is known to have frozen some radishes, celery and lettuce but he said he is only aware of one incident in which a grower plowed under some lettuce.

The amount of damage to sweet corn, if any, was still unknown, he said.

"I know there was some sweet corn up about six inches," Shuler said. "The cold weather and wind could dry out the leaves but if it didn't get to the bud, it should grow back."

Shuler said the lowest thermometer reading he had personally checked at his office was 32 degrees but he had heard of one reading down to 30 on Brown's Farm Road. That was Tuesday morning.

One reading was reported to the Herald-Observer Monday morning, also from Brown's Farm Road, of 26 degrees. Shuler said the problem with relying on readings from various thermometers is the way many are set up, with some in shade and others in sunshine; some higher or lower from the ground than others.

He said there was no frost reported, primarily because of winds averaging 15 miles an hour, but those winds could have dried out some of the leafy vegetables, "but I can't make any firm statement about that yet either."

The cold weather came at the end of a much wetter than usual January, which saw more than six inches of rain, compared to the average 1.88 inch rainfall for the month.

Dr. Robert Allen of the Agricultural Research and Education Center reported 4.55 inches of rainfall over the Jan. 26-27 weekend along.

ENERGY COST

A SOLAR-POWERED CAR is just one of the displays to be shown on Valentine's Day at Lake Shore Middle School when teacher-

demonstrator Jim Cobb presents "Energy Today and Tomorrow."

Lake Shore pupils to view traveling energy program

BELLE GLADE-Lake Shore Middle School will be one of 12 schools in the county where a show explaining energy... where it comes from, how we use it and why it's getting expensive, will be presented, with local kids getting a look on Feb. 14.

"Energy Today and Tomorrow" is a special traveling school program, developed and operated by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU), and sponsored by Florida Power & Light and other Florida electric utilities throughout the state during its tour in Florida.

The show features an array of electronic teaching devices, including an animated garbage can that demonstrates the value of recycling, a bicycle that generates electricity, an electrostatic precipitator to control pollution and an electric motorcycle.

Teacher-demonstrator Jim Cobb uses this equipment and other devices to describe energy sources, methods used today for power generation, possible future energy sources and social, economic and environmental choices faced when energy is also emphasized.

Cobb holds a B.S. degree in Science Education from Mississippi State University and has had special training from ORAU on the subject of energy. His is one of 30 such ORAU units operating daily at schools in different parts of the country.

Lake Shore Science Chairman William Turley said there will be two shows on Valentine's Day, one at 9 and one at 10 a.m. He said all the school's seventh and eighth graders will participate.

Turley said this is only one of several such programs being scheduled for the school's science students. He said Palm Beach County Animal Control officers will be making presentations over a six-day period, beginning next Tuesday, to the students.

ideas. "We got a lot of feedback from the letters last year," he said. "There were dozens of suggestions. A lot of those suggestions wouldn't have come under passed those along to the appropriate departments in the city. We actually funded four projects after they were approved by the city commission. It turned out one of those projects didn't need the funds but the other three became part of the program."

One of those projects, the construction of a ramp for wheelchairs at the entrance to the American Legion Building on

Southeast Avenue D, is now in progress. The ramp was justified because the American Legion is a polling place during general elections.

One of the program's funding sources, Hold Harmless Funds, will end with this fiscal year. Harvin said the city received $145,000 in Hold Harmless funds for the current fiscal year, added to the $364,000 received through the HUD Small Cities program to make a total of $509,000 budget for the program this year.

Next year, Harvin is seeking $471,000 to continue his department's work.

Easing of purchasing guidelines fails

OUTH BAY—A bid to make it easier for the city to make it easier for the city to make purchases without going to sealed bids failed Tuesday evening when the city commission took no action on a proposed ordinance.

The ordinance would have put a question on the Mar. 4 city election ballot, asking whether the city should be allowed to make purchases without going to bid of an amount greater than $1,000, the present amount over which sealed bids must be made.

The city is currently allowed to authorize to shop around for purchases with an estimated cost of less than $1,000. For costs estimated over that, the city must advertise for sealed bids.

No recommendation was made at which point sealed bids would begin in the ordinance. City Attorney James Gann left that item blank for the commissioners to fill in should they decide they should go to a higher amount.

Had the ordinance been passed, it would have had to go before the voters before the question could have been settled.

No motion was made on the measure but Mayor Billy Wells pulled the commissioners. He and Commissioner Don Tanner said

Lady Raiders win conference

BELLE GLADE—The Glades Central girls basketball team were handed the scare of the season, a holiday and the conference championship all in the same week as they topped their season record to 17-0 and took ninth place in the state rankings.

On Monday night, Coach Steve Cohen gave his starting five players the night off, using only the other five players on the team to beat Atlantic, 50-13, just the opposite situation of last Thursday when Pahokee came within two minutes of handing the Raiders their first defeat of the season.

The Lady Raiders pulled that one out with a two point lead, 58-56, with Cohen relying heavily on star backcourt Linda Joy Burroughs.

"We had a really flat week of practice before the Pahokee game," Cohen said. "We couldn't practice at all Tuesday night because there was a concert in the gym and we had a split practice Wednesday, when the boys varsity was using half the court and we were using the other half."

"But Pahokee was playing really well too," he said. "That was a big part of the problem. They had us 18-10 at the end of the first quarter and 35-22 at the half."

He said the Lady Raiders turned the game around in the third quarter, outscoring the Lady Blue Devils, 19-10, and he installed a four-corner offense in the final period to lead that one, 17-11, finally going into the lead with two minutes left on the clock.

A major problem the Raiders had was a poor performance in the free throw line, sinking only six for 21 while Pahokee sank 14 for 25, slowing down the Raiders comeback.

In addition to Cohen's trouble, Joy Burroughs was called on for two fouls in the first quarter and he said he had to pull her out for six minutes of the second quarter.

"I think in the long run," he said, "that kind of game will be good for us. We know now that we can come back and keep our composure and win."

Joy Burroughs led the Raiders' scoring with 17 points, followed closely by Mary West with 18 points. Sheella Ashley with 11 points, Gloria Stewart with four and Jessica Hansford with two.

Miss Stewart, who substituted for Miss Burroughs for six minutes during the second quarter, was the only one of the scorers who had Pahokee who played in the Atlantic game, leading the scoring with 28 points, more than half the points scored by Glades Central.

Cohen said Glades Central Athletic Director Graham Frost had been contacted before last Thursday's game, asking if Glades Central would play the Atlantic girls team, which then had an 8-11 record, with the Raider Junior varsity.

"We don't have a girls junior varsity team," Cohen said, "but I promised Graham I'd do what I could to keep from running up the score."

He said he dressed out all five of his starters but they warmed the bench during the entire game, although there was some grumbling because, "they didn't know how to handle that. They didn't particularly like it."

Cohen said the Lady Eagles didn't let the game out of hand immediately though. He said the score at the end of the first quarter was only 6-4 but the Lady Raiders broke it open in the second quarter, outscoring the Eagles, 14-3 and really poured the coals on in the fourth period, 18-2.

Besides Miss Stewart, Cohen said the scoring was accomplished by Cassandra Strachan with 10 points, Priscilla Rolle with eight, Davena Johnson with four and Jessie Bullard with two.

The win clinched the Suncoast West title for the Lady Raiders, who now face only three more regular season games, all next week, before going into the district playoffs on Dec. 22-23. Should they win that tournament, they'll host the regional playoff in Glades Central gym, probably against unbeaten Okaloosa, number two in the state.

If you have the money GAARC has the time ...and patience

By AILSA DEWING
Staff Writer

They sit on chairs in a circle, a group whose ages range from 18 up. Standing before a blackboard, the teacher holds up a printed sign that reads, "Alice."
"Is this person here today?" she asks. "Who is this?"
There's a few moments of silence before one in the group replies, "Alice. That's me."
The others in the circle applaud. One calls out, "Good girl, Alice."
As one by one they recognize their names on the signs, they go to the blackboard to write their own names. Months ago none of these people could have recognized their names in writing. And a year ago, there was no one to teach them, these adults beyond public school age, ignored for much of their lives by a society that is paced too fast for them and that puts a premium on patience.

Now they are taking part in the Glades Area Association for Retarded Citizens, ARC, which has both the time and the patience to help them. It also has the experience for teaching slow learners whose families can't help because they don't know how.

Learning to read and write their own names is but one step in a total effort to help these people learn self-help skills: how to wash dishes, make beds and prepare simple meals for themselves, to take charge of their own grooming, to recognize the various denominations of money, and develop motor skills that make hands less clumsy. Many could also learn simple job skills that would enable them to become at least partially self-supporting if the ARC facilities had space for a vocational training program.

The life of the retarded is often a lonely one and a Monday night ARC recreation program provides some social life — a night out among friends.

Each week a group of some 20 adults meets to dance, hear a speaker or have a picnic.

Such field trips as going to Lion Country Safari or the South Florida Fair have provided some children and adults with their first trips out of Belle Glade.

ARC's adult program was made possible in November 1978 with the arrival of Pat Montesino, program coordinator, who came to Belle Glade from Sebring where she had also worked with ARC. A graduate of Florida State, she earned her degree in music therapy.

The adult program, however is but one of five ARC conducts weekdays in rented classrooms which on Sunday are the church school of St. Peter's Lutheran Church.

Here preschoolers who have fallen behind their peers in learning ability sometimes spend years learning how to walk or to speak simple words.

Others need intensive help to prepare them for entering public school at the age of five.

Each child is individually tested and a program designed to meet each one's needs, periodically checked for the child's progress toward long-range goals.

Directing the various ARC programs is Tricia Blash, the young woman who has served as executive director since 1973. Miss Blash, a graduate of the University of Tennessee with a degree in psychology, began working in the Glades area after serving with the Palm Beach ARC program.

In addition to supervising the ARC program and personnel, Tricia Blash is spearheading the fund drive for $40,000 which ARC hopes to raise by March to buy the Lutheran church property.

Learning to read and write one's own name can be a tedious task for the retarded but it's one step along the road out of total dependency.

Forty degrees is n't exactly beach weather

FROM THE GRAPEVINE

By BRENDA BUNTING

thinking about purchasing some long johns.

You can always tell our tourist friends when they first hit the door. They always have a healthy looking tan (they are lying out in the sun in bathing suits while we are bundled up by the heater) and another dead giveaway is the short-sleeved shirts while we have on a coat, and more than likely also a sweater under that.

We envy their love of this chilling weather, and wish we could be so overjoyed with them, but really folks, 40 degrees is cold!

So, we wait till our friends settle down here for a few years and then they also commiserate with us over the freezing weather.

Beach weather? You gotta be kidding!

FPL '79 profits down and up

MIAMI-Florida Power & Light Company reports operating results from 1979 fall below those for 1978 primarily because of rising fuel costs, record high interest rates, and inflation.

For the 12 months ended Dec. 31, 1979, net income was $204,668,900 compared with $211,241,000 for 1978. Earnings per share were $4.22 compared with $4.54 last year.

Operating revenues during the year to $1,933,955,000, up from $1,847,226,000 in 1978, while total operating expenses rose 23 percent to $1,632,133,000 up from $1,328,530,000 in 1978.

Common shares outstanding for 1979 and 1978 were 40,254,443 and 40,199,339 respectively. For the fourth quarter, net income was $54,137,000, compared with $56,104,000 for the same period last year, and earnings per share were $1.35 compared with $1.20. Total revenues were $501,881,000 compared with $407,355,000 last year.

Common shares outstanding were 40,254,443 and 40,294,756 respectively for the two quarters.

The most significant factor in the earnings decline for 1979 was the rapid rise in fuel expenses, and Joe L. Howard, vice president and chief financial officer. "These when expenses, reflected in electricity bills only after a two-month lag, resulted in an under-recovery of fuel costs which has a direct impact on earnings," Howard said other contributing factors were general inflation and sharply increased borrowing costs.

He noted that the price of low-sulfur fuel oil increased from $14.13 per barrel at the beginning of 1979 to $28.00 at year-end, contributing significantly to the 47 percent increase in fuel expense for the year. For the fourth quarter, fuel expense increased 53 percent over the same period last year.

The Company's borrowing costs also continue to rise, according to Howard. "Last November we sold a $75 million issue of first mortgage bonds at an interest rate of 12-1/8 percent, which is an all-time high for this type of financing."

Canner testing slated Feb. 22

LADE...appointments made now for checking pressure canners Feb. 22 at the Agricultural Office in the Glades Courthouse Annex.

Pressure canners with dial gauges should be checked annually for safety's sake, according to Mrs. Arlen C. Jones, Palm Beach County Extension home economist.

The Extension Home Economics Office provides the service free prior to the start of canning season.

Appointments are necessary, however, Mrs. Jones said, and may be made by calling 996-1657.

Tests will be conducted from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Feb. 22 by Mrs. Beverly Harrington, Extension Home Economics agent.

Only pressure canners with dial gauges will be tested. The canner lid with the dial gauge should be brought in for the testing. Weighted gauges do not need testing, according to Mrs. Jones.

CAR CARE Why? SHOCKS WEAR OUT
Mechanics tell us motorists tend to ignore the condition of their shock absorbers more than most other car components. The result: cause shocks wear out gradually, the loss of roadability and comfort may be virtually unnoticed on some cars until the shock absorbers are worthless. The result: a combination of symptoms that can make it difficult to control your car on turns or when stopping on a rough road. The driver may notice the car wallowing or leaning somehow when changing direction at high way speeds. Or he may notice his car's rear end "bottoming out" (the springs hit the bottom of the chassis) or the body or wheeling after a bump or when hauling extra weight.
Working somewhat like the tubular device that prevents the screen or storm door from slamming, the shock absorber is a telescoping tube filled with hydraulic fluid. Inside the tube is a piston with several small openings through which the fluid passes as the piston moves in and out.
The tube is connected to the car's suspension, which older cars consider a better type of shock absorber to help restore the new car ride. Original equipment shocks are designed to accommodate the stiffer components of new cars. But as suspension parts "bump" up with age a former shock absorber action is usually advisable.
While leakage is the most common reason for shocks wearing out, says Car Care Council, there are other causes of failure. The mounting brackets can become worn or the mounts can break.
The Council says it is generally wise to replace shocks in front end/rear sets, not singly. And, on moves up and down the road irregularities. The other part of the shock absorber is connected to the body or frame of the car. Motion of the wheels through fluid in the plunger-through-fluid action of the shock absorbers. As the car's spring is compressed because of a wheel passing over a bump, for example, the shock absorber telescopes, the piston is forced down the fluid at a rate controlled by the size of the holes and the valve. The same action controls rebound.
If the fluid in a shock absorber cannot be replaced, so when a shock develops a leak, it has to be replaced.

If the fluid in a shock absorber cannot be replaced, so when a shock develops a leak, it has to be replaced.
While leakage is the most common reason for shocks wearing out, says Car Care Council, there are other causes of failure. The mounting brackets can become worn or the mounts can break.
The Council says it is generally wise to replace shocks in front end/rear sets, not singly. And, on moves up and down the road irregularities. The other part of the shock absorber is connected to the body or frame of the car. Motion of the wheels through fluid in the plunger-through-fluid action of the shock absorbers. As the car's spring is compressed because of a wheel passing over a bump, for example, the shock absorber telescopes, the piston is forced down the fluid at a rate controlled by the size of the holes and the valve. The same action controls rebound.
